Introduction to eProcurement

- eProcurement is the electronic linking of public sector purchasers with their suppliers to conduct any or all aspects of procurement
- Procurement includes the purchasing of supplies, services and works. It covers all aspects of the procurement cycle.

Introduction to eProcurement

- As part of the Governments' Action plan on Implementing the Information Society in Ireland, eProcurement was identified as a Key project in the promotion of the information society
- Cross Agency Committee established, March 2000
 - Public Sector
 - Health sector
 - Education Sector
 - Local Government
 - Private Sector

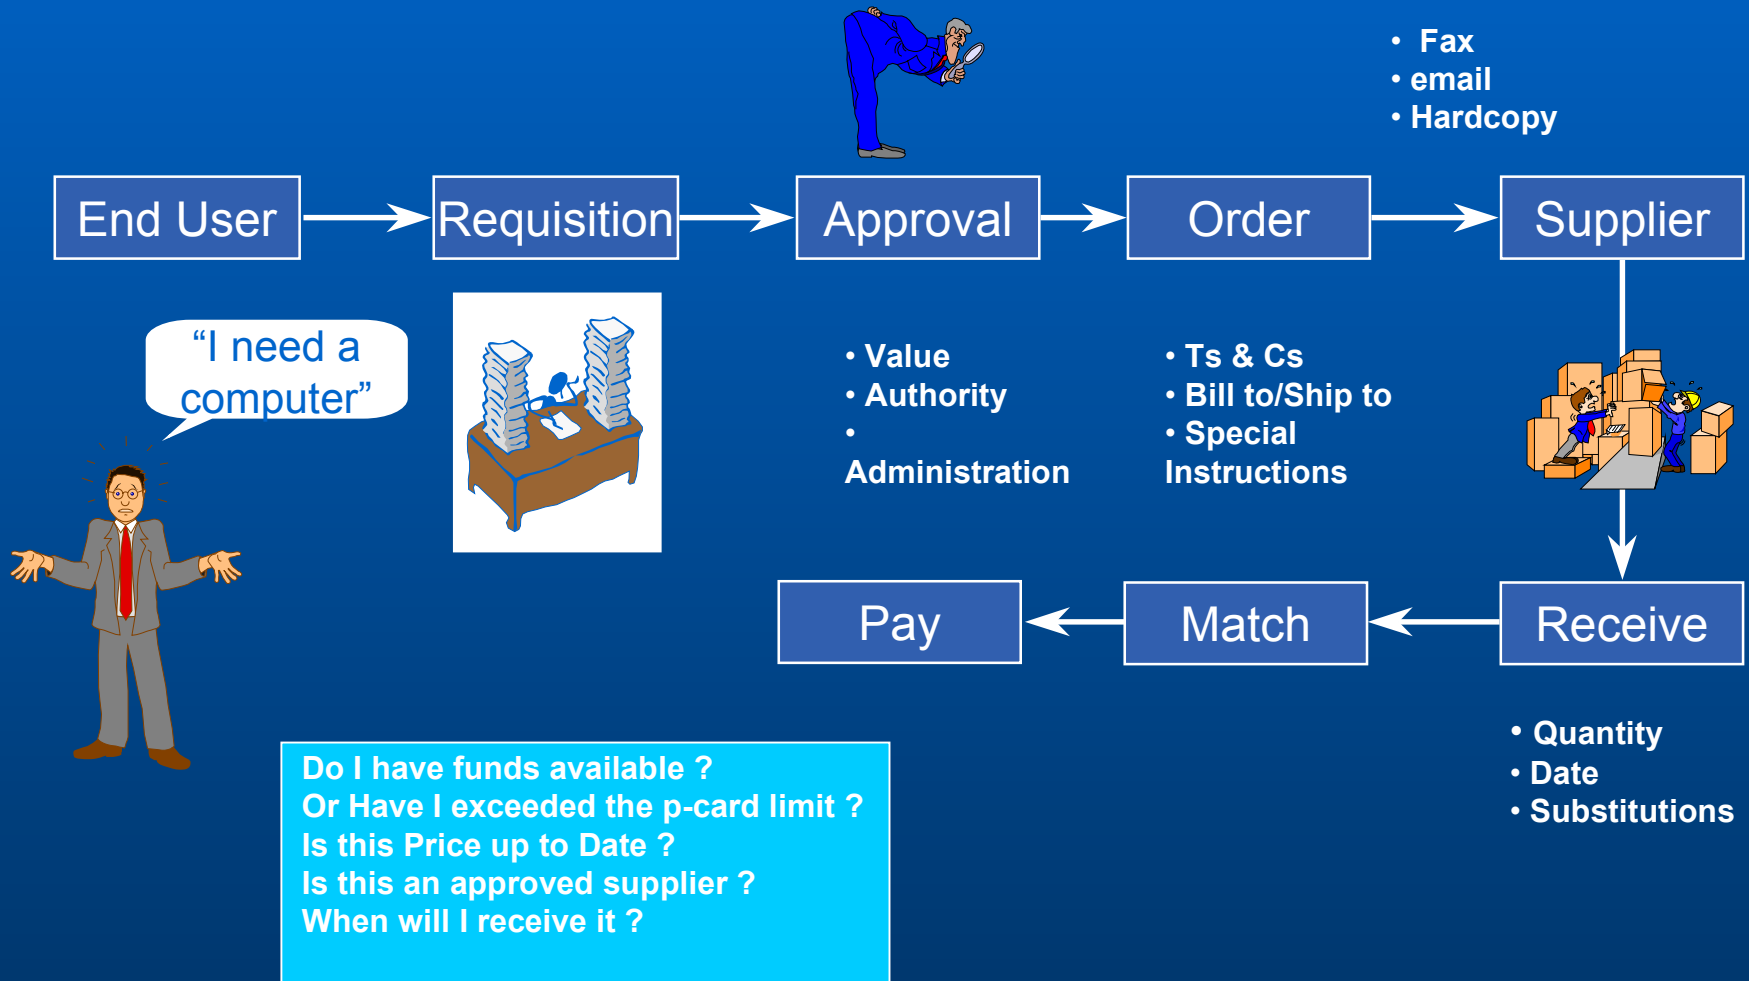

Phased Approach

- Phase 1 – development of a ‘Strategy for the Implementation of eProcurement in the Irish Public Sector’
 - Price Waterhouse Coopers + partners awarded contract
 - Report sent to Government February 2002
- Phase 2 – Implementation of the ‘Strategy’ in chosen pilot sites

Principal Objectives

- Promote eCommerce
- To facilitate the participation of all suppliers interested in accessing procurement opportunities in the public sector
- To introduce innovative procurement strategies
- To develop a more integrated approach to procurement across public sector agencies & sectors
- To minimise the transaction costs associated with procurement through standardisation, streamlining & automation of the procurement process
- To create a secure and confidential environment
- To make the best use of the most up to date technology and effective use of human resources

Procurement Processes Today - Traditional Method

Up to 76% of time can be spent on non value added activities

Overview of www.etenders.gov.ie

- www.etenders.gov.ie is the first visible evidence of the Government's delivery on eProcurement
- It is designed to be the central facility for Irish public sector procurement
- Public sector procurement opportunities currently being advertised in the OJEC, trade journals, national and local papers are also being published on a daily basis on this site
- Many public sector agencies spend large amounts of money advertising RFT's (Request's for Tenders) in national newspapers and spend huge amounts of time handling tender processes. This facility takes away all advertisement costs & much of the administration burden

Overview of www.etenders.gov.ie

- Tender notices & documents are prepared in the normal way & posted to the etenders website. Suppliers can read the notice by using their username & password, download the tender documents. A complete record of everyone who downloaded tenders is available to the Awarding Authority

- To post tenders, you need to be a registered user in a registered authority. Once you're validated, you'll be given a password and you can post tenders using the upload facility

- To browse notices, no registration is required

- Normal EU legislation still applies, you still have to advertise in the OJEC/EU Journal

Using Internet Explorer, browse to www.etenders.gov.ie

WHY REGISTER

Registration to e-tenders.gov.ie is not a requirement for use of the site or for gaining access to tender notices published on the site. Users only need to register if they want to download tender documents. Please note that not all notices published to the site will have the associated tender documents available. The availability of tender documents is denoted by a 'paperclip' graphic to the left of the notice title.

 Network Personal Computers	Department of Finance	30/04/2001	12/04/2001
--	---------------------------------------	------------	------------

When a user downloads a tender document from the site a record of this is kept for the sole use of the authority who has issued the tender. The authority is then in a position to get in touch with the registered user to inform them of any changes which may occur or to clarify any issues. This information is not provided to any third parties or used in any other way.

Only basic information is required from users who decide to register.

Tender Documents Downloads

- When a supplier decides to download RFT's they are challenged for a username and password. If they have not registered, then they must do so before they will be allowed to proceed.
- While tender notices are available to anyone visiting the site only registered suppliers can download RFT's. The reason for this is so that Authorities have a record of suppliers who have downloaded tender documents. Should a change in the documentation arise then the authority can contact each user to let them know of the change.
- Contracting Authorities who have published tenders have the ability to see, from a secure area of the site, who has downloaded tender documentation. A facility is also provided for Authorities to automatically contact these people should the need arise.
